3. Secondly as regards the staff.--

The circumstances connected with the coming Census will be found to differ in several important respects from the last Census in that

(a) While the Revenue Commissioner was the Head of the Census Department in 1911, I am the Head of the Department for this Census and this must be taken into account in the formation of the staff.

(b) The work of the District and taluk officers has considerably increased since 1910-11 and more guidance and assistante will therefore be now required by them from the Census Head Quarters.

(c) The growth of population during the intervening decade has on the whole been slow and steady if not rapid.

(d) More attention will probably be paid this time to the industrial and occupational side of the Census.

These things being premised, I would strongly urge that one assistant be appointed at once, primarily for office work at Head Quarters and secondarily for touring work when that is necessary, the other being appointed about a month or so later on primarily for touring work and secondarily for organising work at Head Quarters. (These two assistants will of course be absorbed fully in the abstraction and tabulation stage later on in 1921). Not only have the Census Procedure Code, Circulars and forms to be issued but the Census staff from the Enumerator to the Charge Superintendent have also to be regularily trained in their onerous duties throughout the eight Districts and care has to be taken that the instructions in the Code and the Circulars are properly understood and enforced. This can only be secured by the frequent itineration of two assistants and of myself. One of the Assistants may be designated Deputy Census Superintendent and the other an Assistant Census Superintendent, a suitable local allowance being given to each of them.
